U.S. Probation Officer Action:

We are currently writing to inform Your Honor of the offender's recent arrest. According to the arrest report and an interview with the arresting officer, the offender was pulled over for a dim taillight while driving on Woodbine Street in Brooklyn, NY, on January 28, 2012. In the course of the stop, it was discovered that the registration for the vehicle had expired and that the registration card attached to the vehicle had been manually altered to reflect an incorrect date implying it was still valid. The offender was arrested for possession of a forged instrument in violation of New York State Penal Law 170.25 in the second degree, a D felony, as well as Vehicular Traffic Law 375, inadequate or no stop lamps. As the offender was not the owner of the car, and no presumptive evidence existed indicating the offender was aware of the forgery, the Kings County District Attorney's office declined prosecution of the case. The offender reported to the probation office on February 1, 2012, and notified his officer within the prescribed 72 hour time period outlined in the conditions of supervision. Upon interviewing the offender regarding his arrest, he indicated he was borrowing his girlfriend's car and had no knowledge as to the expiration of the registration. He was given a verbal reprimand for the incident and instructed to be more conscientious.

To date, the offender has been completing his community service obligation as required, is involved in a training program to obtain his commercial driver's license, and has been compliant with his electronically monitored curfew. The Probation Department respectfully recommends that no further action be taken at this time. We will continue to monitor the offender and notify the Court if there are any further issues or additional violations.

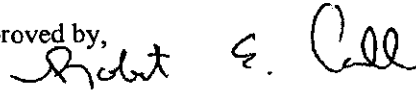

Respectfully submitted by,

Hillel Greene
